The School of Life is a global organisation helping people to lead more fulfilled lives.

We believe that the journey to finding fulfilment begins with self-knowledge. It is only when we have a sense of who we really are that we can make reliable decisions, particularly around love and work.

Sadly, tools and techniques for developing self-knowledge and finding fulfilment are hard to find – they're not taught in schools, in universities, or in workplaces. Too many of us go through life without ever really understanding what's going on in the recesses of our minds.

That's why we created The School of Life; a resource for helping us understand ourselves, for improving our relationships, our careers and our social lives – as well as for helping us find calm and get more out of our leisure hours.

1 RELATIONSHIPS

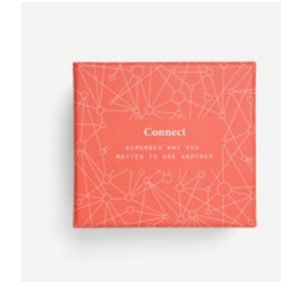

It is estimated that 70% of a person's life satisfaction depends on the quality of their relationships. Yet this is an area where we too often get stuck, unable to make ourselves understood or find the sort of love we need.

These tools are designed to help us escape our frustrations, learn to communicate properly and put us on the path to sincere and flourishing relationships.

2 SELF-KNOWLEDGE

THE SCHOOL OF LIFE

In Ancient Greece, when Socrates was asked to summarise all philosophical commandments, he replied: 'Know yourself'. Self-knowledge matters so much because an accurate sense of who we are helps us to make reliable decisions – particularly around love and work.

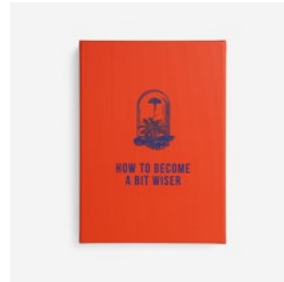

These tools help us to understand the hard-to-access bits of our minds and to know our deep personalities as well as we can.

5 CALM

Calm has a deep and natural appeal. Most of us long to be more patient, unruffled, at ease and capable of reacting with quiet good humour to life's setbacks and irritants. But if calm is an ocean, most of us are still in the shallows.

These hugely effective tools help us to secure calm on a regular basis and to grow into the serene people we have always longed to be.

The School of Life is hugely interested in art, literature, psychology and philosophy – and draws upon these disciplines for its many ideas. It proposes that works of culture were all made, in one way or another, with the idea of improving how we live.

This range of products connects up culture with our own dilemmas and hopes around love, work and our psyches, and invites us to use our leisure time to address the complexities of being human.

7 SCHOOL OF THOUGHT

THE ENGLISH MODERNISTS
HEPWORTH, HENRY, 1911-1982

Two artists like Henry Moore, Barbara Hepworth and Ben Nicholson were starting to do the opposite and again - English Modernists' named the aestheticism. When a new kind of the village, their and family life depicted in traditional English art you were depicted in the distant future and abstracted materials coming from abstract in Europe. Art can reveal false documents. It can show us when we are all with a sense of imagination, rather than a real responsibility. It is possible to have a complex aesthetic of personal life and to be a modernist. But it took the imagination and determination of personal artists to show us how.

THE POP ARTISTS
MARSHALL, MARSHALL, 1911-1982

Pop Art emerged in Britain and the US at the end of the 1950s. It connected art to the ordinary objects of everyday life and with the images of commercial culture. Artists, musicians, films and television shows were - traditionally - regarded as vulgar and as unworthy of being by serious, elite artists. Pop Art recognized that they could be charming, beautiful or even quite moving. It started from the thought that the ideas we need might turn up in surprising places. Considering the fact of a lot of things can be a profound experience. An image in a comic book might teach us as deeply as the most prestigious works of literature. The ordinary is beautiful, as it always should be.

PASCAL
PASCAL, BLAISE, 1623-1662

Two Protestants united to that what ultimately plunged us into sadness and anger and disappointment, but hope. Their devotion could, so to get and before the lastest one began at a moment of its own choosing. Reading these positions isn't actually a pleasant surprise. We frequently hear and imagine, together that comes from a post-war position we may sometimes find to be clearly cheerful. At last, there are people who show us in their fullness in our sadness and anger, people who encourage us to see that life is fundamentally better than incidentally miserable.

EXISTENTIALIST NOTEBOOKS
KIERKEGAARD, KIERKEGAARD, 1813-1855

The Existentialists loved the most and have much to say about the world and experience of the modern age. Their writing says to that traditional humanism and to tell one how to live but that modernity, we have to make it all up for ourselves. This is both surprising and a little shocking. The Existentialists look at the world through and around. They are especially concerned with how we can cope with the process to make the right choice in our lives and in our various times. The Existentialists help us to be compassionate observers of ourselves.

THE SCHOOL OF LIFE
3 NOVEMBER 3 THOUGHTS

The history of philosophy is filled with some fascinating 'schools of thought' dedicated to tackling life's big problems in distinctive ways.

Each of these notebooks carries an introduction to a great thinker on the inside front page, their name beautifully printed on the cover – and otherwise empty pages for your own projects.

9 STATEMENT

The objects we own are, in their own way, hugely eloquent; they reflect our personalities and reveal important truths about our ourselves to others. These might be as simple as the brands we like or the music we listen to – but they might also be something more profound: our personal philosophy of life.

Our Statement collection is made up of beautiful objects proclaiming wise, vital truths about emotions and existence, helping you to make a statement wherever you go.
